

WES WILLIAMS, PhD

Vice President & Chief
Information Officer

DR. WES WILLIAMS is vice president and chief information officer at WellPower, Denver’s community mental health center. Wes was recognized for excellence in technology leadership with a 2020 Denver Business Journal C-Suite Award, the 2020 Colorado CIO of the Year Corporate ORBIE, and as a finalist for the Colorado Technology Association’s 2023 APEX Award for CIO of the Year. Wes opened WellPower’s Innovation Technology Lab in 2019, using human centered design to find digital health innovations to improve access, engagement, and treatment efficacy. Wes is currently serving a second three-year appointment by the governor to Colorado’s eHealth Commission, representing behavioral health interests. He also supports public health work through involvement with the Metro Denver Partnership for Health and the Colorado Health Observation Regional Data Service. Wes is a licensed psychologist in Colorado. He serves on the board of directors for Prime Health and the Realness Project and the advisory board for Visible Network Labs. To support his own well-being, he enjoys mountain biking, gravel biking, snowboarding, and coaching ultimate Frisbee.
